Your Bonus Allocation

Details of your bonus allocation can be found in your Bonus Notice.

Bonuses declared depend on the actual experience and future outlook of key factors affecting the performance of the Par Fund, including investment performance, operating expenses, and benefits payouts (from insurance claims, surrenders and survival benefits). We aim to provide stable bonuses and returns over the lifetime of your policy and may save a portion of the Par Fund's investment returns in good years to help us maintain bonuses in periods when returns are lower. An effect we term as "smoothing".

Your Bonus Notice will be progressively issued between April to September 2023, and upon receipt, you will be able to view it by logging in to PRUaccess eDocuments.

<sup>2</sup> This Total Expense Ratio is computed at the total Participating Fund level and includes all participating sub-funds. This ratio is the proportion of total expenses incurred by the Participating Fund to the assets of the Participating Fund. These expenses include investment, management, distribution, taxation and other expenses. Past expense ratios do not necessarily indicate actual expenses that may be incurred in the future.

Factors affecting the Par Fund's performance in 2022

The Par Fund's performance and its declared bonuses are determined by a number of factors. These include the fund's portfolio composition and performance and non-investment-related factors, such as operating expenses and benefits payouts. Let's go through the details in the following pages.

1 / Non-investment Factors

Benefit payouts from insurance claims, surrendered policies, and operating expenses, could impact the Par Fund's performance and the level of bonuses declared. We do not expect short-term fluctuations in these non-investment factors to significantly affect current and future bonuses.

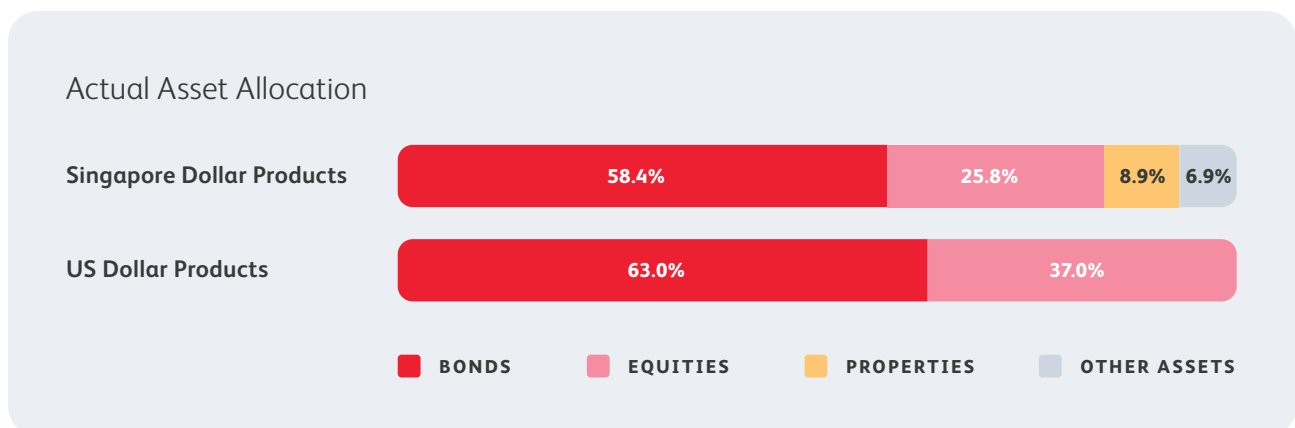

KEY NON-INVESTMENT FACTORS	IMPACT ON BONUS
Insurance claims were lower than expected	Positive
Surrender payments were lower than expected	Negative
Expenses were close to expected	Neutral

In 2022, the total amount of benefits paid to our customers was S$2,343.1 million.

2 / Portfolio Composition

As of 31 December 2022, the size of the Par Fund is S$29,547 million, and the Actual Asset Allocation is as follows:

3 / Market Review

2022 was an exceptionally challenging year for financial markets. Market uncertainty was driven by unforeseen shocks that dominated global headlines: high inflation, unprecedented interest rate hikes, and the Russian-Ukraine war.

High inflation can be attributed in part to global supply chain issues, the war in Ukraine, and soaring energy prices. As inflation peaked in the year, US treasury yields rose to their highest level since 2007. The US Federal Reserve and subsequently central banks around the world made a series of interest rate increases to combat inflation. The hikes have caused a sell-off in global bond markets. Moreover, the increase in interest rates in response to intense price pressures rather than strong demand conditions has reduced diversification benefits between equities and bonds.

Global equities have declined significantly over the last year amid fears of recession. As economic growth slowed and interest rates rose, speculative interest in growth stocks that had built up over the past decade began to fade. As a result, value stocks have outperformed their growth stocks counterparts. While investors may find few positive returns across equity markets, Singapore had finished the year ahead of its global peers as investors believed that the country had shown financial stability and strength amid the turbulence last year.

Looking ahead

Inflation is expected to stabilize in 2023 as post-pandemic and war-induced disruptions continue to fade. In addition, the prospect of a more accommodative policy backdrop, improving global demand and reopening tailwinds from China may help to slow inflation. However, the risk of recession remains elevated, particularly in certain markets which may continue to struggle with weaker growth and ultimately translate to weaker demand and earnings.

All in all, we approach 2023 with cautious optimism. The effects of central bank policies have yet to fully come to fruition. Furthermore, there is additional complexity from the uncertain growth outlook globally, particularly in China. Nevertheless, we have seen in 2022 that increased volatility also comes with some attractive opportunities. Investors should always ensure that their portfolios are well-positioned for ever-changing conditions in financial markets.
