

TRUST DEED – EDUCATIONAL OR JUVENILE TRUST (EJ)

Please read these important notes before completing the Trust Deed

- While Prudential is prepared to assist you in effecting your policy under a trust, Prudential cannot accept any legal responsibility for the appropriateness of the trust or its wordings or the effectiveness of the trust or any other legal or tax consequences. If you have any doubts, you should consult a lawyer.
- The trustees must always comply with trust law and act in the best interests of the beneficiaries in carrying out the provisions of the trust.
- Prudential will make payment of the benefits jointly to all existing trustees, unless directed by them in writing to do otherwise.
- If no trustee is living when the policy money becomes payable, settlement cannot be made until it has been established from whom Prudential may correctly accept a discharge. It is therefore advisable when considering your choice of trustees to arrange, as best as possible, at least one trustee who is likely to outlive the life assured.
- If you opt for Juvenile Trust, the policy will cease to be a Trust policy when the life assured reaches age 21. Thereafter, the life assured will take over full legal and beneficial rights under the policy and Prudential will make payment of the benefits directly to the life assured.
- In the event that payments of premiums under the policy are not made (whether by the trustees or the life assured), the policy may lapse. In the event that the policy is lapsed, benefits under the policy may be lost.
- No amendments or corrections (e.g countersigning, correction tape, correction fluid) can be made on the form.
